

Handling of Complaints and Appeals

CertX SA (Pty) Ltd. vision and mission statements are linked with the objectives of the complaint management system. Every complaint and/or appeal is reviewed and addressed within the context of CertX SA (Pty) Ltd.' core values, mission and strategic direction to determine if any change is required. CertX SA (Pty) Ltd. is responsible for all decisions at all levels of the complaint and appeal handling process and shall ensure that the submission, investigation and decision on complaints or appeals does not result in any discriminatory actions.

Complaints are considered as opportunities for improvement. CertX SA (Pty) Ltd. understands the link between complaint resolution and customer loyalty and satisfaction and aims to address problem areas promptly. In an endeavour to improve on our services, CertX SA (Pty) Ltd. needs to know where its processes can be improved on, and where improvement is evident. Clients are encouraged to submit feedback via the CertX SA (Pty) Ltd. website, the "Customer Satisfaction Survey Form", telephonically or by email.

Positive feedback is used as a measure of the effectiveness of our systems, whereas negative feedback is registered as a complaint and managed accordingly.

Non-conformances as identified through the complaints system are managed and addressed, taking corrective action appropriate to the impact of the problem, and eliminating the causes of nonconformities to prevent recurrence.

CertX SA (Pty) Ltd. ensures that complaints against the services of its applicant or certified organisations (Certified Client) are first addressed by the Certified Client through their own complaint procedure.

Clients are also afforded the opportunity to appeal against an adverse certification decision made by CertX SA (Pty) Ltd. Appeals are managed by an independent panel.

Regular trend analysis of complaints is done, where main areas of concerns are highlighted, and the effectiveness of the corrective actions can be assessed.

Client satisfaction is measured through various means, such as external customer surveys by independent service providers, feedback received, and types and numbers of complaints raised. This is critical to the success of the complaint management and client satisfaction processes.
